O'Rourke's men were first at bat and were easily blauked, Cleveland getting as far as second on balls and a steal. Ward was warmly applauded when he came to the bat, but went out on an easy grounder. The side was retired without a run. The second inning was a goose-egg all around, not a man getting as far as first base. Since the beginning of the game the wine had veered around until it blew cold and strong from the northwest, driving many spectators from the granuds and causing the players to don their coats and trot around lively to keep warm.

There were no runs in the third for either side. In this inning Cleveland made a remarkable left-hand pit.k-up o: a grounder from Weidman's bat, uontoing up Stat.ery at second and Weidman at frs.

The six hundred spectators present at the beginning of the game had dwindled down to a bare corporal's guard.

One blue-nused but enthusiastic little woman held the fort in the grand stand, keeping an alleged score of the game and asking her escort incumerable questions.

The forth luning was the same, and went without a tally. Ewing's men made one in the fifth and game was called.

Greenwood, Burns and Purcell quickly went down in succession before Clarkson's curves. BALTIMORE. BOSTON.

Greenwood, Burns and Furcell quickly wend down in succession before Clarkson's curves.

Beanburg jumped on 10 Kliroy at oucc. Singles by Kelly, Sution and Hornong, a triple by Nash and a bad throw by Kliroy yielded four runs for Boston. Baltimore again grew a blank and Boston did the ame, Kelly striking out.

The Baltimore players interrupted the game and presented a silver tea service to Kliroy, but it did not inspire the Orioles, for they failed to score.

Boston made one run in the third and fifth, but the Orioles drew blanks every time, except in the seventh when they made one.
